A SCARED EDITOR.

A rugged farmer stalked into the sanctum with a big whip under his arm.

"Be you the editor?" "I am," was the half apprehensive reply.

"Here's two dollars—send me your paper for life," he said.

"You see," he went on, "our daughter was sick and like to die; she drooped and grew weak and pale, had headaches, no appetite, back ached, hands and feet like ice, couldn't sleep, hacked with cough, and we thought she had consumption. No medicine helped her until she tried that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription mentioned in your paper, when she began to mend in no time and is now well and handsome as a rose—put me down as a life subscriber."

Now the editor is looking for another scalp. The medicine has cured thousands afflicted as was the farmer's daughter, restoring the female functions to healthy action, and removing the obstructions and suppressions which caused her trouble. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) refunded. It's a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to sour or ferment in the stomach and derange digestion.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS Purely Vegetable. Genuine Laxative, or Cathartic, according to size of dose. Smallest, Cheapest, Sugar-coated and Easiest to take. Cure Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation. By druggists. 25 cents a vial.

SOME UNKNOWN LANDS.

Vast Tracts That Are Still a Sealed Book to Geographers.

The surface of the earth comprises an area of 200,000,000 square miles, of which three-fourths is covered with water. This leaves 50,000,000 of square miles of land for the human race to occupy, or about one square mile for every thirty-five persons, big and little.

It would seem that such an area would be enough to prevent crowding, and so it would, says Golden Days, if the density of population were the same all over the world.

But we find that the human race, either from choice or accident, has always huddled itself into certain parts of the world, leaving other parts either entirely deserted or very sparsely populated. Some very good reasons sometimes exist for these irregularities, and at other times the reasons are hard to find.

We can easily understand why Greenland, for instance, or Patagonia should not be densely settled, but it is not easy to understand how the great continent of Australia came to be so long without inhabitants.

It is curious to note the queer way in which populations have shifted in the course of ages. Asia, as the cradle of the human race, first became thickly settled, and contains to-day two countries—China and Hindostan—where the population is extremely dense. But portions of Asia—such as Arabia and Persia—from all accounts must have lost half if not more, of their population during the last thousand years.

Great as the Shah of Persia fancies himself to be, he is but a puny prince compared with the great Darius or Xerxes.

Africa has likewise suffered an enormous loss of population since ancient times. We have ample proof that the valley of the Nile once swarmed with life, and all through North Africa, now almost a desert, given up to wild beasts and wilder men, civilization once flourished to a remarkable extent.

Europe was settled from the south, and the very small portion comprising Italy, Spain and the islands of the Mediterranean Sea were populous for centuries, while that we know now as France, Germany, England, Austria and Russia were forests and deserts, quite as barbarous and uncultivated as the present interior of Africa.

These were the countries of antiquity, North and South America and Australia being unknown. Yet the two former were densely populous in ages long ago. The valleys of the Missouri, Ohio and Mississippi swarmed with people engaged in business and agriculture; Mexico had a population much exceeding its present one; the ruins of great cities in Central America attest its former greatness, and it is certain that Peru, under the Incas, was the seat of a mighty civilization. Australia, however, has always been a sparsely-settled country.

Such have been the changes of time that much of the world is still an unknown land, and we are now busily engaged in discovering much that was known before.

Europe has nothing to disclose, but a great part of Asia and nearly three-fourths of Africa is still a sealed book to us moderns. The explorations of Stanley and those who preceded him are mere spider tracks in the desert, and our best maps of Africa are half guesswork.

In Asia, there is Thibet, Turkestan and the great desert of Sahara to be explored. We know almost nothing of Borneo, Papua or Madagascar, and thousands of islands in the Pacific Ocean are still unexplored.

Great tracts of Australia have never been trodden by the foot of a white man, and nearly all of South America, inside of the coast lines, is known only by hearsay and tradition. Coming up to our northern half of the continent we encounter more unknown lands. Central America and Mexico offer fertile fields for exploration, and Lower California has never been thoroughly explored.

In the far North is Greenland, Baffin Land, the great Hudson Bay region, all of British America north of latitude 60 degrees, and our great Territory of Alaska. Here is a wonderful field for adventurous explorers, and it is impossible to predict what is in store for them. The natives of Northern Alaska also report that further north is another land, not down on the maps—an inhabited land with a comparatively mild climate.

Even in the new State of Washington there is an unknown land of 2,500 square miles. This land is shut in by the Olympic mountains, and Indian traditions say that it is inhabited by a very fierce tribe, which none of the coast tribes dared molest.

Here, then, is half of our 50,000,000 square miles consisting of unknown lands! What a magnificent field for the men in search of health, wealth and knowledge! and what room it gives for future generations to travel and settle! All of it is not fertile; some is uninhabitable on account of severity of climate, but much of it is as fair as any land we know and fully as capable of supporting life.

Sixteenth Century Surgery

Fabricius, one of the most noted surgeons of the sixteenth century, thus describes his method for tumors: "If it be a movable tumor, I cut it away with a red-hot knife that sears as it cuts; but if it be adhered to the chest I cut it without bleeding or pain with a wooden or horn knife soaked in aqua fortis, with which, having cut the skin, I dig out the rest with my fingers."

A TRIFLE PESSIMISTIC.

Early in the century there lived in Edinburgh a well-known grumbler named Sandy Black, whose oft-recurring fits of spleen or indigestion produced some amusing scenes of senseless irritability which were highly relished by all except the fellow's good, patient little wife. One morning, says the New York Ledger, Sandy was bent on a quarrel. The haddies and the eggs were excellent, done to a turn, and had been ordered by himself the previous evening; but breakfast passed without the looked-for compliment.

"What will you have for dinner, Sandy?" asked Mrs. Black.

"A chicken, madam," said the husband.

"Roasted or boiled?"

"Confound it, madam, if you had been a good and considerate wife you would have known before this what I like!" Sandy growled out as, slamming the door, he left the house. It was in the spring, and a friend who was present heard his little wife say:

"Sandy's bent on a disturbance to-day. I shall not please him, do what I will."

The dinner-time came, and Sandy and his friend sat down to dinner. The fish was eaten in silence, and on raising the cover of the dish before him in a towering passion the former called out:

"Boiled chicken! That's it, madam! 'A chicken boiled is a chicken spoiled!'" Immediately the cover was raised from another chicken roasted to a turn. "Madam, I won't eat roast chicken!" roared Sandy. "You know very well how it should have been cooked." At that instant a broiled chicken with mushrooms was placed on the table. "Without green peas!" roared the grumbler.

"Here they are, my dear," said Mrs. Black.

"How dare you spend my money in this manner?"

"They were a present," said his wife.

Rising from his chair, Sandy clenched his fist and shouted:

"How dare you receive presents without my leave?"

LONDON BOOKSELLERS.

They Are Not as Enterprising as Their American Competitors.

Nearly every book-dealer in London is a publisher. Consequently, if you seek a particular book it is hard to procure it at once unless you know the name and location of the publishing house. There are certain dealers—notably Hatchard, in Piccadilly—who will get any book that is in print and can be got out, writes Eugene Field in the Chicago News, they require time. Go into any shop and ask for an item and the chances are nine to one that the answer will be: "No, we haven't it, but we can get it for you."

In every little nine-by-four shop you hear talk about "our factory." "We shall have to send down to our factory" for this article or that. This sort of thing makes even strong men very weary.

After inquiring in vain at half a dozen shops for a copy of James Whitcomb Riley's poems I made the long journey to Paternoster Row and applied for the book at Longman's, the publisher. I was referred to a dealer in St. Paul's Churchyard. Thither I proceeded. They were all out of the book, but could get me one. "How soon can you get it?" I asked. "In a week or ten days," they said. "Where do you have to go for it?" I asked. "To the publisher's," they answered. "My friends," said I, "I have traveled four miles for that book and I am going to camp here till I get it. The publisher's is only one minute's walk from here—now fetch me that book!"

Very few of the second-hand book-shop keepers know what they have in stock. You ask them for a certain book and they shake their heads, when the chances are that several copies of the book you want are conspicuously displayed upon their shelves. Their so-called catalogues are not worth much, because they include, in most cases, only the high-priced books. The real curiosities are to be found not in the catalogues, but upon the top and bottom shelves of the dusty stalls.

A School-Ma'am's Lawsuit.

Miss Kate Kennedy, who has been a teacher in the public schools of San Francisco for more than twenty years, has just gone through a year's fight with the board of education, and established the principle that the board can not discharge teachers without cause. Miss Kennedy, having obtained a leave of absence, made a visit East, and was surprised upon her return to find that her place had been given to her substitute. The board of education coolly informed her that she was not wanted, whereupon she brought suit to test the legality of her discharge, meanwhile making formal application every month for her salary. She won her case in the lower courts; and now the Supreme Court sustains these decisions, and orders that she be restored and receive her back salary.

Anna Dickinson's Secret.

A woman who knows Anna Dickinson well says that she seems to possess the secret of eternal youth. If you did not know her you would find it impossible to tell her age. In figure she is below medium height and slender, though she gives you the impression of being strongly made. Her eyes are gray and large, her complexion is clear and dark, her mouth is set in firm lines and her hair is short, brown and curling. Her expression is one of force and power.

THE SIOUX SUN-DANCE.

Lieutenant Schwatka contributes to the Century a curious custom of the Sioux. From this article we quote the following: "When all had assembled and the medicine-men had set the date for the beginning of the great dance dedicated to the sun, the 'sun-pole' was selected. A handsome young pine or fir, forty or fifty feet high, with the straightest and most uniformly tapering trunk that could be found within a reasonable distance, was chosen. The selection is always made by some old woman, generally the oldest one in the camp. If there is any way of determining, she leads a number of maidens gayly dressed in the beautiful beaded buckskin gowns they wear on state occasions; the part of the maidens is to strip the tree of its limbs as high as possible without felling it. Woe to the girl who claims to be a maiden and joins the procession the old squaw forms, against whose claims any reputable warrior or squaw may publicly proclaim. Her punishment is swift and sure, and her degradation more cruel than interesting.

"The selection of the tree is the only special feature of the first day's celebration. After it has been stripped of its branches nearly to the top, the brush-wood and trees for a considerable distance about it are removed, and it is left standing for the ceremony of the second day.

"Long before sunrise the eager participants in the next great atop were preparing themselves for the ordeal and a quarter of an hour before the sun rose above the broken hills of white clay a long line of naked young warriors, in gorgeous war-paint and feathers, with rifles, bows and arrows, and warlances in hand, faced the east and the sun-pole, which was from five to six hundred yards away. Ordinarily this group of warriors numbers from fifty to possibly two hundred men. An interpreter near me estimated the line I beheld as from a thousand to twelve hundred strong. Not far away, on a high hill overlooking the barbaric scene, was an old warrior, a medicine man of the tribe, I think, whose solemn duty it was to announce by a shout that could be heard by every one of the expects. throng the exact moment when the rim of the morning sun appeared above the eastern hills. Perfect quiet reigned upon the line of young warriors and upon the great throng of savage spectators that blanked the green hills overlooking the arena. Suddenly the old warrior, who had been kneeling on one knee, with his extended palm shading his scraggy eyebrows, arose to his full height, and in a slow, dignified manner waved his blanketed arm above his head. The few warriors who were still unmounted now jumped hurriedly upon their ponies; the broken, wavering line rapidly took on a more regular appearance, and then the old man, who had previously covered himself for the great effort, hurled forth a yell that could be heard to the uttermost limits of the great throng. The morning sun had sent its commands to its warriors on earth to charge.

"The shout from the hill was re-echoed by the thousand men in the valley; it was caught up by the spectators on the hills as the long line of warriors hurled themselves forward towards the sun-pole, the objective point of every armed and naked savage in the yelling line. As they converged towards it the slower ponies dropped out and the weaker ones were crushed to the rear. Nearer and nearer they came, the long line becoming massed until it was but a surging crowd of plunging horses and yelling, gesticulating riders. When the leading warriors had reached a point within a hundred yards of the sun-pole a sharp report of rifles sounded along the line, and a moment later the rushing mass was a sheet of flame, and the rattle-shots was like the rapid beat of a drum resounding among the hills. Every shot, every arrow and every lance was directed at the pole, and bark and chips were flying from its sides like shavings from the rotary bit of a planer. When every bullet had been discharged and every arrow and lance had been hurled the riders crowded around the pole and shouted as only excited savages can shout.

"Had it fallen in this onslaught a better pole would have been chosen and another morning devoted to this performance. Though this seldom happens, it was thought that the numerous assailants of this pole might bring it to the ground. They did not, however, although it looked like a ragged scarecrow, with chips and bark hanging from its mutilated sides.

"That such a vast, tumultuous throng could escape accident in all that wild charging, firing of shots, hurling of lances and arrows and great excitement would be bordering on a miracle, and no miracle happened. One of the great warriors was trampled upon in the charge and died late that evening, and another Indian was shot. The bruises, sprains and cuts that might have been spoken of in lesser affairs were here unnoticed, and nothing was heard of them."

Cured by an Accident.

Mrs. A. F. Wood, of Kennebunk, Me., a lady who has been lame for several years, went to the barn loft to gather some eggs, and in sliding down upon the hay with her lame leg, hearing something crack, she felt she had broken some bone. She called to her husband for help, and when he came and helped her up she found she could walk better than before. The ligaments which had adhered to each other by non-use were broken apart, improving her lameness.

How the Citizen Army Is Drilled at Rotterdam, Amsterdam and Other Cities—Droll Effects Produced by the Ignorance of Officers.

Holland is becoming exceedingly fidgety about her militia affairs, says a letter in the New York Tribune. The national defenses are in a disorganized condition, and the Dutch would be unable to offer much resistance to any invasion. Reform is the cry on every hand, and universal conscription is advocated on all sides; but no one seems to feel disposed to carry the matter through. As things now are no Dutchman need serve in the regular army if he can pay for a substitute. The consequence is that too rich are opposed to the universal conscription, because they do not want to serve, and the poor are against it because they would no longer receive the large sums which their children earn by serving as substitutes. Every man, however, between the age of twenty-five and forty is forced to belong to the militia, or schuttery, as it is designated in Holland. The latter numbers about two per cent. of the entire population. But it is quite harmless, and partakes to a certain extent of the nature of the opera comique.

Nothing can be more amusing than to watch the schutters on their way to drill late in the afternoon of summer and autumn days. They can scarcely be described as presenting a martial appearance in their blue and red uniforms, with their shakoes perched rakishly on one side of their head, the chin strap barely reaching down to the nose, a cigar or pipe in the mouth, and an antediluvian-looking old musket carried over the shoulder, butt end upward.

In winter when it rains or snows the monthly drill at Rotterdam, Amsterdam and other important cities, usually takes place under cover in the bourse after the business of the day is over. The drill sergeants, however, dislike this; for it doubles their work, since the schutters devote far more attention to the figures of the afternoon stock quotations, still chalked upon the board, than to the figures of drill.

The officers of the militia regiments are exceedingly gorgeous creatures, with their long, clanking sabers, their plumed hats and their profusion of gold lace. Their knowledge of things military is but one degree superior to that of the men under their command, for they have been forced to drill for two hours a week during a period of six weeks with a regular line regiment. Under ordinary circumstances they manage to fulfill their duty after a fashion, but during the annual manoeuvers they are subjected to great trials. A schutter Captain will be standing in front of his company, when a corporal acting as orderly approaches with the following message: 'The enemy is close at hand. The Colonel sends you his very best compliments and wishes to know if you would oblige him by leading your men to attack. All at once the latent patriotism and military ardor of the Captain blaze forth. He draws his sword and, calling on his soldiers to follow him, rushes to meet the imaginary enemy. Suddenly his advance is check by a shallow ditch filled with mud water. This causes his fierceness abate, for he would not for all the world soil his uniform. He pauses for a few seconds. All at once a happy thought strikes him. "Fire by volleys!" he calls to his men. Immediately the ramrods are heard to rattle in all the enormous barrels of the old muskets, and a minute later the hammers fall with a clicking noise of old metal. For the militia-men are not only forbidden the use of gunpowder, but are even denied percussion caps. In the middle of all this the Adjutant of the regiment, who is invariably an officer of the regular army, dashes up on horseback and exclaims in frantic tones to the Captain:

"Good heavens! man, don't you know that in case of volley firing the officers must not stand right in front of the muzzles of their men's guns?"

Nowise disconcerted, the Captain pulls his hand-book of military regulations out of his pocket and, after carefully glancing over several pages replies in a nonchalant manner: "Well, I don't see any thing about it in it."

The face of the adjutant becomes scarlet, he gulps down two or three big oaths and finally ejaculates: "Here, give me the book. See there! It is page forty-eight." And then, with a look of despair and a shrug of his shoulders, he dashes off to some other equally well-informed schutter officer.

Meanwhile the Captain has leisurely returned his sword to its scabbard and has inscribed in his note-book the following memorandum: "In case of volley firing it is better for the officer to keep to the rear of the front, so as not to come into contact with the muzzles of his men's guns."

The Majors, the Lieutenants and the Colonels of the "schuttery" are all cut out of the same cloth as the Captain above portrayed; always ready to argue the point with their superior officers, and producing the direst effects by their utter ignorance of military tactics. There is even a "schutter" General who is a retail tea merchant. None of the officers or men are acquainted with the mechanism of a modern rifle, and there are probably but few of them who would venture to handle one if they knew it was loaded.

Battle of Gettysburg

We strongly advise our readers when visiting San Francisco, to be sure and see the wonderful Panorama of the "Battle of Gettysburg" and museum, corner Market and 10th streets.

There is now quite a talk concerning it amongst the newspapers and people generally, as to whether it would not be best for the State of California to buy it and make it free.

It is the most wonderful Panorama the world has ever seen, and a great educator and incentor of patriotism.

The museum in the same building has become the popular resort of California for children.

TAKE CARE! THERE IS DANGER

In allowing inactivity of the kidneys to grow through neglect. The deadly shoals of Bright's disease and diabetes will wreck the goodly bark of health if it is allowed to drift rudderless upon them. The bladder, too, if inactive, and judicious medication does not speedily direct the helm toward the port of safety, will be whelmed by the quicksand of disease. In selecting a diuretic, let your choice fall upon Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which stimulate the renal organs without irritating and exciting them, two effects to be apprehended from the unmedicated stimuli largely resorted to. These have a tendency to react prejudicially. The bitters invigorate the kidneys and bladder, in common with the nerves and the digestive organs, and so afford lasting aid. It also affords dual assistance in preventing and curing intermittent and remitent fever. Biliousness, constipation and rheumatism it also subjugates.

ELECTION PROCLAMATION.

BY VIRTUE OF THE ANNEXED RESOLUTION, adopted at a meeting of the Central Committee of the Republican Party of the County of Mono, State of California, held on the 30th day of July, 1890, authorized by the rules and customs of the Republican Party of said County, a voluntary political organization, a precinct primary election of the said Republican Party for the election of candidates for the Assembly, Superior Judge, and County Officers, to be voted for at the General Election, to be held on the 4th day of November, 1890, and a Central Committee, is called for the

between the hours of One P. M. and sundown, in said County of Mono.

RESOLVED,

FIRST.—That the nominations of Republican candidates for the Assembly, Superior Judge, and the following County Offices, for Mono County, State of California, to be voted for at the General Election of November 4th, 1890.

Sheriff and Tax Collector, Clerk, Auditor and Recorder, District Attorney, Treasurer, Assessor, Surveyor, Coroner and Public Administrator, Superintendent of Public Schools, Supervisor for Districts Nos. 1, 2, and 5 respectively, and Township Officers, and a Central Committee as follows. Antelope 2, Benton 2, Bodie 7, Bridgeport 5, Clinton 1, Lundy 2, Vernon 1, be held in accordance with the provisions of the Primary Election Law, Part III, Title II, Chapter XIV, of the Political Code of the State of California.

SECOND.—The names of the persons constituting the several Election Boards, and the respective places of holding the elections, in the said County of Mono, in the several precincts, are as follows:

ANTELOPE.

BENTON.

MONO MILLS.

Store—Inspector, John Langree; Judges, Oscar Brown, ———.

VERNON.

THIRD.—That such election will be held under the provisions of the Primary Election Law, and in accordance with the rules prescribed in Sections 1083, 1084, 1144, 1145, 1146, 1147, 1148, 1162, 1163, 1164, 1174, 1175, 1176, 1185, 1200, 1201, 1202, 1203, 1224, 1227, 1229, 1230, 1231, 1232, 1233, 1234, 1235, 1236, 1237, 1239, 1240, 1241, 1242, 1243, 1255, 1256, 1257, 1258, 1259 and 1260 of the Political Code of the State of California.

FOURTH.—That in addition to the qualification of voters, required by law, every elector entitled to vote at said election must take the test—the BEST to be, "Are you a Republican, and will you support the Republican nominees at the coming election?"

FIFTH.—All the provisions of Title IV of the Penal Code, and all the provisions of the Sections in the first Section of the Chapter, above particularly set forth, are applicable to elections held under the provisions of this Chapter from and after the first publication of the notice mentioned in Section 1259.

SIXTH.—That the notice of said election shall be published in the BRIDGEPORT CHRONICLE-UNION, of August 2d, and the Homer Mining Index, of August 9th, 1890, newspapers published weekly in Bridgeport and Lundy, respectively, in Mono county, State of California, and continuously until said day of election.

The above Resolution and Notice of Election were duly presented to, and adopted by the Central Committee of the Republican Party of Mono county, State of California, and our Secretary is instructed to publish the same as herein advised.

SILAS B. SMITH,
Chairman of Republican Central Committee of Mono county.

FRANK E. HUNEWILL,
Secretary.

INSTRUCTIONS TO BOARDS OF ELECTION.

1360. In addition to the challenges allowed by law, any person offering to vote at such election may be challenged upon the grounds that he does not possess the other qualifications prescribed in the resolution, and such challenges must be determined by the board of Election, who to that end may administer an oath to such persons, and may ask them any question tending to prove or disprove the challenge.

1361. None but persons who possess the qualifications prescribed by law and by the resolution must vote or participate in any of the proceedings at such election.

1362. After counting the votes and signing the lists the Judges must cause the ballots and one copy of the lists to be delivered to the Secretary signing the notice of election, and one of the Judges must retain the other lists for twenty days after the election.

TO CANDIDATES.

Candidates are required to deposit with the Secretary, on or before the 20th day of August, 1890, $10 and a written pledge to support the nominees. This does not apply to township Officers and members of the Central Committee.

TO VOTERS.

The Central Committee will furnish tickets with the names of candidates printed thereon, and voters will scratch those whom they do not wish to vote for.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Good Agricultural Land for $10 to $20 per Acre.

The Pacific Improvement Company has recently purchased twelve thousand acres of land in the heart of Tehama County, for the purpose of promoting subdivision and settlement. This land embraces lands from first-class Sacramento Valley agricultural land, to land of fair average quality, and is offered at from $10 to $20 per acre, in subdivisions of 40, 80, 120, 160 and 320 acres.

The terms upon which these lands are offered are especially attractive. They will be sold in subdivisions, as above indicated, by the payment of interest only for three years, at which time the purchaser can begin the payment of principal by paying the first of five equal annual installments. Thus no part of the principal is to be paid for three years, and then the purchaser is to have five years in which to pay five equal annual installments, with interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, making payments extending over a period of eight years. Intending purchasers are assured that this is an opportunity to purchase land of fair average quality at $10 per acre, with other grades of land at prices to correspond between these figures.

The assertion is frequently made that good lands, suitable for general farming, and especially adapted for fruit growing, cannot be had in California for less than from $60 to $100 an acre. An examination of the land subject of this advertisement will prove to home seekers that this is an opportunity for the purchase of good agricultural land at $20 per acre, and for qualities grading down to fair agricultural land at $10 an acre, on terms of payment which should make the disposition of these lands to actual settlers a result easy of accomplishment.

The primary object of the purchase of this body of land was the breaking up of a large holding for the purpose of promoting its settlement in smaller quantities and its devotion to diligent husbandry.

Fourth Annual Fair at Bishop.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

On Sunday Judge Leavitt and wife returned from Antelope.

Mrs. O. H. Kister returned from Bodie on Sunday.

A. C. Folger, delegate to the Republican State Convention, departed on Sunday.

Rev. E. Mc Evers and Thurman De La Matyr, en route from Bishop, to attend the Conference at Virginia City, on Wednesday, arrived here on Saturday: spent Sunday at W. T. Elliott's, and left on Monday. At Mack's, A. C. Folger took passage with them, and his team was driven back by Wm. Rickey.

Frank Willard, H. C. Blanchard, S. W. Gregory, and N. H. Gregory were here on Court business.

On Monday Mail-Contractor Hogan was in town.

W. H. Russell and wife returned from Antelope on Wednesday, and left for Lundy yesterday.

Rev. S. W. Albone, of Bodie, being at the Conference, his wife is the guest of Mrs. J. A. Brown.

Clara Donell returned from Bodie Thursday.

Mrs. E. L. Benedict, of Bodie, brought Mrs. Kister home on Sunday, and returned on Monday.

Mrs. Louis Sammann came from Mono Lake on Thursday, returning yesterday.

A. B. Burnside of Bodie, was here on on Thursday.

On Thursday B. Garcia, of Bodie, was in town.

COOL.—Although weather is warm, there is a man in Mono county who is cool—very cool. He is one of the "out door" indigent, one who receives monthly allowance, and does not reside at the Hospital. About three years ago the Supervisors voted him $72 to go home—never to return. It was supposed to have been an economical proposition. He drew the money from the County Treasury and "swung around the circle," and returned to within fourteen miles of the starting point. Visiting Montana, he found it too cold, Oregon too wet, and San Francisco too blustering. The authorities have been advised that his brother will send a ticket and pay his expenses, if he will go home. The indigent coolly says that he will wait until the Supervisors meet in October, and then, if they will give him some money, he may go home. It will be a cold day for him when the Board meets.

PEARLS BEFORE SWINE.—The Bodie Fool should not whine so loud. It is distressing to hear a full-grown Democrat cry for the money of Republican candidates, to fight the Party and it nominees. Two years ago he published the Republican Primary, and from that day to the election abused the Republican Party, its candidate and the Central Committee. That man can see no good in a Republican, and for thus being a fool he did not get the publishing of the Primary. And he is bigger fo l if possible, when he blubbers over it. It is presumed Republicans will know when their primary takes place, though the Republican papers do not circulate in the backyards.

DEMOCRATIC.—The Democratic Central Committee met at Bodie, on Saturday last, and filled vacancies; elected M. J. Kelly, of Bodie; and Ben H. Miller, of Bridgeport; Delegates to the State Convention; ordered a Primary to be held on September 16th, and the Convention to be on the 23d of September, at Bodie. A resolution was adopted in favor of James V. Coleman for Governor.

FOR ASSEMBLYMAN.—Under "New To Day," will be found the announcement of Frank E. Hunewill, of Bridgeport, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Assembly. Frank, being a native of California, is a young man of promise, well-educated, and, being conversant with the wants of the State and county, would make a good Representative.

COMPLIMENTARY.—County Clerk Kister has been presented with a letter requesting him to be a candidate for renomination. It is signed by Democrats and Republicans, and, in response, Mr. Kister is a candidate. He will receive the solid Republican vote and a goodly number of Democratic.

SHERIFF.—Under "New To-Day," John A. Creaser, of Benton, is announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff. Mr. Creaser is one of our best Supervisors, and would make as equally a good Sheriff.

COUNTY TREASURY.—The moneys in the County Treasury were counted on Monday and the amount was $21,605 35.

SCHOOL LANDS.—The Delinquent State School Lands will be advertised next week.

YOUNG AMERICA.—At the corner of Bryant and School streets is an excavation for the reception of the 36 foot flagstaff presented to the CHRONICLE-UNION office by James Logan. It is four feet deep and one in diameter, covered by a large box. On Wednesday afternoon four children, ranging from four to seven years, were playing near it. For a time noise was supreme, then three of them went home. Hearing a cry, we went to the door and listened; in a few moments it was repeated. Removing the box, we found a four-year-old boy, standing in the hole. The children had dropped him in, and, being unable to haul him out, replaced the box, took a walk and did not return.

DROWNED.—Joseph Thompson, well-known in this county, was drowned on Thursday afternoon, while attempting to cross the stream, at N. H. Gregorys, four miles from Bodie. He was a native of Canada, aged 32 years. His body was recovered yesterday and interment took place today.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.—Miss Cornelia Richards is announced in this issue as a candidate for Superintendent of Schools, subject to the decision of the Republican primary. As to the young lady's qualifications, the fact that she has a life diploma is a first-class recommend LIGHTED.—Thomas Fales, of the Brick Saloon, has placed a large lantern in front of his premises. Should the hotels and others do likewise, Main street would be more pleasent.

PERSONAL.—His Mono friends will be glad to learn that Paul W. Bennett has been nominated by the Republicans of San Joaquin county for District-Attorney.

The Inyo Register says: W. H. Russell, of Benton, is spoken of as a candidate for the Assembly. He would make a first-rate run in this section should Mono put him forward.

RAIN.—A moderate rain of two hours duration visited this section Thursday.

RECEIVED THIS WEEK BY SILAS B. SMITH, Bodie: Ten quarter sheeting, pillow case muslin, bed ticking, awning ticking, Lonsdale cambric, and muslin, ginghams, calicoes, double width dress goods, linen dusters for ladies and gentlemen, Summer hats for ladies, gentlemen and children, hosiery, gloves and mitts, white goods and embroideries, boots, shoes and slippers, corsets, handerchiefs, pocket knives, scissors and notions of all kinds. Also, a fine line of clothing for men and boys.

JOE A. BROWN has just received a general assortment of family Groceries, Dried Fruits and fresh Candies.

RITING AS A TRADE.

Not Such a Business As Some Are Led to Believe.

Common-Sense Comments by Dr. Edward Eggleston Of All the Learned Professions Literature Certainly Is the Most Poorly Paid.

The phenomenal sales of many recent books, notably such as General Wallace's "Ben Hur" and Mr. Bellamy's "Looking Backward," have led the general public to believe that the business of authorship must be a profitable one. This impression has been intensified by reports of the great prices paid certain writers for their productions. Examples in point are the handsome incomes attributed to Mark Twain, W. D. Howells, Miss Burnett and others of far less note. Consequently the recent statement ascribed to Dr. Edward Eggleston, himself a successful writer, in disproof of this opinion has been received with surprise. Dr. Eggleston, according to a literary journal, holds that there is not a single American author who really makes an income out of his books. Grubb street has become a tradition, but the rewards of the book-maker continue painfully small. Dr. Eggleston writes to a Globe-Democrat correspondent in repudiation of the bald statement thus attributed to him, but in reiteration of the poor financial returns of authorship: "Of course I did not say any thing to proprietors or editors as the words attributed to me by the newspaper in point. This is only one of many illustrations of the loose habit of American journalism in this time. More brains, more precision, more mental training are wanted in the reporter's work. Of entertaining reporters there are enough, men who will find out the secrets of the North Pole, steal an interview with the Pope or the Czar, or penetrate in search of news to a lady's bedchamber. But a decent report of a public assembly, or of an address for which the orator did not himself supply the manuscript copy, have not been in use long time. I wish to file a general caveat that I am accountable for no speeches put into my mouth in this way. What I did say before a Congressional committee was that I did not know any author who had acquired a competency by literary work properly so-called. I preceded to embody Longfellow's. Mr. Longfellow was a professor and made good investments. Mr. Emerson was poor during the greater part of his life, I believe, though he endured the drudgery of young lecturing, and it is said he only gained a competence in old age by good investments. Hawthorne was driven to drudgery for a book-maker like Goodrich and to seek public offices. Mr. Lowell has had other sources of income; Mr. Howells has had, let us hope, a liberal editorial salary; Colonel Higginson published a successful school-book. My very point is that authors are driven from the production of literature, 'properly so-called,' to drudgery or sensationalism by the desire to earn that sufficiency which literature does not give. The newspaper in point may or may not in its critical moments class the profitable juveniles of Miss Alcott, Mr. Trowbridge and Oliver Optic with literature properly so-called. It is a matter of opinion. Mr. Aldrich's admirable 'Story of a Bad Boy,' which I should call literature without a question mark, did not reach the tenth part of the circulation attained by Boston juvenile of a flimsic texture.

"I make the remark. I am combating the notion very prevalent among Congressmen that an author of reputation has opened a bonanza. Of all the learned professions, literature is the most poorly paid. The leading authors must be compared with leading lawyers, doctors and magistrates. If you compare a successful author with a country lawyer or the pastor of a village church, you might make a fair showing. But what author ever hopes to attain the income enjoyed, say, by the late Dr. Willard Parker or by Mr. Evarts? The body of working litterateurs who make pot-boilers for the booksellers all their lives and are never known to the newspapers in such a discussion as this, certainly have no hope of more than the livelihood of a very humble professional man.

"For many years I have been accustomed to warn young men off from beginning a literary career, because so few of the literary workers ever attain a competency."

A Lady Is a Lady Everywhere.

A lady is no less a lady because, instead of eating her heart out in poverty and idleness, she joins the great army of bread-winners and opens a shop; there is no more dignity in her position than if she sent round the hat to her friends. Except by snobs, men and women are beginning to be measured not by their business or calling, nor by where they may be seen, but by what they are. This reminds me, by the way, of my meeting a lady of quality once at a dinner, writes Hamilton Aide in the New Review. It was out of the season, and the dinner was not at a fashionable hours. The lady of quality thought fit to take me aside and apologize for being seen where she was: "Not at all my set, you know." Her set, obviously, should have been at the lower table in the servants' hall.

A Murderer's Skin Tanned.

In April, 1831, a man named John Horwood was hanged at the usual place, (in Bristol) for the murder of a girl. * * * The following tradesman's account is the first manuscript contained in a book in the infirmary library: "Bristol, June, 1832. Richard Smith, Esq., Dr. to H. H. Essex. To binding in the skin of John Horwood a variety of papers, etc., relating to him, the same being lettered on each side of the book 'Cutis vera Johannis Horwood,' £1 10s." Perhaps all that can be said in excuse for such an act is that it had been surpassed in a neighboring county a few years previously. According to the Bristol Mercury of May 31, 1816, after a man named Marsh had been hanged in Cornwall for murder, his body was flayed and his skin sent to Taunton to be tanned.

SMART GIRL THIS.

How a Gotham Mailboy Invented a Pleasant and Lucrative Occupation.

A clever girl who loves children and has the soul of an artist has opened a new avocation for herself and other maidens who need money, says the New York Sun. This girl recently saw a beautiful child of four years, sitting in a carriage with his mother, in front of a shop. But, ah! The boy's beauty was almost concealed by a dowdy costume, costly, but unbecoming. A bright thought popped into the girl's head, and she said to herself: "There's a mother who does not know how to dress her child. Why not design a costume for him and send it to her?" She ascertained who the woman was and went home and originated the cutest little suit that mortal ever dreamed of. This design she sent to the mother, explaining that it would not be sold elsewhere should she purchase it. The girl had sense enough to ask a good price, as the woman fancied both the idea and the design. Since that first step was taken the girl has progressed rapidly. Now she has as regular patrons some of the wealthiest and most influential women in New York. When they wish new clothing for their children, as they do every few weeks, they drop a note to the young woman, telling her to design a frock for school, or afternoon, or a party dress. Thereupon the artist makes an appointment, goes to see the child, studies its form and features, makes a few notes and in a day or two submits her design. She frequently buys the materials, thus obtaining the commissionaire's percentage from the shopkeepers. She reads fashion papers, haunts stores which advertise new importations of dress goods and millinery and keeps her eyes open on the streets. She has gone into the work as a regular business and is making an excellent income from the novel work.

MARRIED ANOTHER MAN.

A Matrimonial Advertisement That Didn't Work Just as Intended.

An advertisement appeared in the London Advertiser a short time ago from a man residing at Temby Bay, named Ibbotson, in which he spoke of his desire to secure a Christian woman as a wife. Among those who read the advertisement was a widow residing at Perth, mother of two children, who answered it. The gentleman wrote a reply, in which he described his house and worldly goods and explained that he desired some one to take charge of his household. The widow, after some correspondence, purchased a ticket to go to her prospective husband. She did not find things quite as she expected. The household consisted of the father and nine children, the youngest of whom was seven years of age. The children's mother had died insane and the charming widow was loth to complete the transaction which she had begun so bravely. She was stopping at Illiton, and the widower went thither to interview her, but the lady would not be seen at all.

This would be a sad ending were it not that another chapter yet remains to be told. A young man of Temby Bay heard of the lady being there, and that she had two little children, five and eight years old. He had a nice little talk with her Sunday, proposed marriage with her Monday, was accepted, and the wedding took place Tuesday. The widow says she has not made a mistake, even if it was a hasty action, for the young man in question is sober, respected and industrious. At last accounts Mr. Ibbotson was on his way to Bruce mines to meet another lady who had taken preliminary steps toward matrimony in response to the advertisement.

A FUNNY EPISODE.

Drs. Robert Collyer and Robert Laird Collier in a Street-Car.

Rev. Robert Collyer enjoys a joke immensely, even though it be against himself, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press. Many years ago, when he was pastor of Unity Church in Chicago, a funny incident occurred in which he participated. I was well acquainted with Laird Collier, but had a speaking acquaintance only with the former. There were just three occupants of a street-car in Chicago, consisting of Dr. Robert Collyer, an unknown gentleman and myself. The stranger remarked to the doctor, as they sat side by side, that he regretted exceedingly leaving the city—where he had passed a week—without seeing or hearing these two celebrities, especially the Unity Church Collyer. I sat opposite the two gentlemen and saw there was fun ahead. Dr. Collyer bowed politely as he recognized me. Finally the stranger asked the doctor his opinion of the two reverends of whom he had heard so much. Dr. Collyer glanced at me with a merry twinkle in his eyes, his round, ruddy face all aglow with anticipated fun; but when the querist asked which of the two Collyers he best liked, the situation became irresistible to me, as I feared one or the other of them would leave the car before my time came. "Well," said the renowned Robert, "Laird Collier is a splendid fellow, and I like him very much, very much, indeed; but to be honest with you, I confess that I do like Robert the best."

I could stand no more, and as I rose to leave the car, and with all the gravity of my nature extinguished, I turned to the stranger saying: "Allow me, sir, to introduce you to Rev. Robert Collyer, of Unity Church." The effect may be more easily imagined than described. Dr. Collyer went into convulsions of laughter, while the stranger was so dazed he could not say a word. Both looked impossible utterances at me, and I fairly staggered under my own laughter as I tried to pass out of that car.

Their Drinks Are Regulated.

The German War Office has issued a general order that in future no officer is to be served before dinner at a military club with more than one small glass of spirit or liquor; and absinthe is absolutely prohibited. It has hitherto been the practice of officers to stimulate their appetites for the heavy early dinner by libations of kummel or kirsch, cognac or gin.
